FLOOR DEBATE

April 13, 2004 LB 391

that the contract cannot be disavowed? Are we at the same time then bestowing jurisdiction on the court to entertain a suit as soon as that child is in breach of a contract, rather than waiting until the child reaches a higher age?

SENATOR QUANDAH: I guess I'm not sure, but I don't think that it affects...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: You're not sure? Well,...

SENATOR QUANDAH: I'm saying I'm not sure because I haven't looked into that, but I would say that LB 391 doesn't appear to me to affect the jurisdiction of the court, no.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Members of the Legislature, we better be very sure of what we're doing. I'm not sure either, and I'm not going to support this bill until we get some certitude. And this is not pejoratively said about Senator Quandahl. I'm asking questions because I need answers, and when we don't have them, I don't think we ought to proceed. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER BROMM: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Erdman.

SENATOR ERDMAN: Mr. Speaker, members of the Legislature, allow me to share with you what is about to happen. I'm going to ask the Speaker to pass over the bill at the end of my speech, and here's why. As I spoke last time, there are issues that are perceived and there are issues that are real. There are issues that are understood, and then there are those that Senator Chambers and Senator Quandahl just spoke of that aren't. As important as I think this is, I think it is more important that we recognize the opportunities that are under existing circumstances for young people in the state of Nebraska to find opportunities for themselves. If LB 391 goes forward with Senator Beutler's amendment, or even with the amendment that I have before you, it does restrict opportunities. And again remember that the way that this happens now is on a case-by-case basis where a young person in the state of Nebraska that needs to contract for necessities has the opportunity to do that under common law, and where there is a statute, as Senator Quandahl
